O<sub>2</sub> launches e-game and gives away a PlayStation 3

MUNICH. Telefónica O<sub>2</sub> Germany is launching an exciting e-game on 19 November: Since October O<sub>2</sub> has reduced contract terms for its mobile Internet flatrate to only 6 months. And at o2.de/play, anyone interested can now liberate themselves from irritating term monsters.

Customers can now surf the Internet from their mobile phones for just 25 euros per month with a contract term of just 6 instead of the previous 24 months for the mobile Internet. O<sub>2</sub> has now developed a fun e-game to go with these attractive conditions. Under the motto “Mobile Internet without monster terms”, irritating tariff monsters are now in for it as well. Great prizes are also available – including a PlayStation 3 as well as a Nintendo DSI XL with games packages.

Monster alert: the main player in the game is the O<sub>2</sub> surfstick. Fun is guaranteed thanks to a simple game format: small, annoying monsters, which irritate you with their long contract terms, appear behind certain keys on a virtual keyboard. If the user presses the same key on their keyboard, the O<sub>2</sub> surfstick charges the monster and banishes it. Reactions and accuracy are what counts. More and more monsters at ever shorter intervals depending on the level of the game ensure continuous excitement. Players can collect points and trophies that can be uploaded to Facebook directly via an interface and shown to friends.

As well as the short term for mobile surfing, O<sub>2</sub> also offers one of the most reliable mobile high-speed networks: according to a network test by “connect” magazine (edition 12/10), O<sub>2</sub> is the front runner when it comes to reliable file downloads and is champion in the telephony category.
